22—Glenwood Hotel; April 24—25
Hotel del Coronado; April 26—27—
Hotel Hayward.

The Twentieth Annual Excursion
of the California Press Association, just ended, was one of the most pleasant of the many enjoyable trips taken by the Association. It gave us a glimpse of the grandeur and beauty of our glorious state, and has shown us that man's energy, combined with nature's gifts, can accomplish much. The beauties of the southland have been pictured many times, but truly "the half has never been told."

We were received with open arms,
and cordially and enthusiastically welcomed with a hospitality that was unbounded. We saw much and learned much of Southern California
—this sunny land of the west, this garden spot of the earth.

For the many courtesies received on this trip we owe our thanks to the transportation companies, the various chambers of commerce, the hotel managements, the newspaper fraternity in the cities we visited,
and to the Southern California residents in general.

The excursion party left Third and Townsend streets, San Francisco, on April 20th, at 4 o'clock p. m., and went direct to Long Beach over the scenic Coast Line of the Southern Pacific. This is a picturesque ride and every comfort is afforded the traveler. With us the Southern Pacific Company sent a special emsary, Mr. John S. Ross, a very obliging and congenial gentleman, to assist in our wants and pilot us to favored places.

At Long Beach we stopped at the magnificent New Virginia Hotel, where we had a commanding view of the battleship fleet, with Catalina Island forming an ideal background.
The Virginia is conducted by Mr. D.
M. Linnard, and is under the same management as the Hotel Maryland at Pasadena. Both are first-class hotels in every sense of the word.

While at Long Beach the party was entertained by the Long Beach
Chamber of Commerce with an auto ride; many of the editors went aboard the battleships, and in the evening we were the guests of the ladies of the Ebelle Club.

Our next stop was at Riverside, beautiful, restful Riverside. We were carried thither over the San Pedro,
Los Angeles and Salt Lake railroad.
It was a most delightful ride through a beautiful country.

At Riverside we stopped at the Hotel Glenwood, at once comfortable and homelike, and with grand in-service and artistic in appointments.
It is conducted by Mr. Frank A. Miller, one of the most genial of hosts.
He is assisted by his sister, Mrs.
Alice Richardson, who so admirably conducts the Tavern at Lake Tahoe during the summer months. At Riverside we were taken for an electric ride of thirty miles through fragrant orange groves, and the Riverside Chamber of Commerce also took the party in automobiles to the top of Rubidoux Mountain, where a view of the surrounding country was panoramic.

From Riverside the party went to San Bernardino, where the Board of Trade of that city met us and we were taken in special electric cars to the wonderful Arrowhead, where we had luncheon at the beautiful Arrowhead Hotel, managed by J. M.
Beck. From Arrowhead Hot Springs flows an abundance of water at a temperature of 196 degrees, which is four degrees hotter than the famous hot springs at Carlsbad, Germany. The hotel is located on the mountain side just under the Arrowhead and commands a view of the great valley below.

At Redlands we were met by the Redlands Board of Trade, and taken in trolley cars over the famous McKinley drive, among beautiful homes, and to Smiley Heights, one of the most artistic private parks in the world. These grounds were laid out by two Quaker brothers and are now owned by the surviving brother, A.
K. Smiley. Redlands owes much to the Smiley brothers.

The next stop was at the world renowned Hotel del Coronado at San Diego; the party going from Riverside to San Diego over the Santa Fe.
This road extends for miles along the ocean and is one of the most picturesque routes in the state. Here the election of officers took place, resulting as follows: Friend W. Richardson, Gazette, Berkeley, President;
Paul W. Moore, Facts, Redlands,
Vice-President; Duncan McPherson,
Sentinel, Santa Cruz, Treasurer;
Oran A. King, Herald, Benicia, Secretary; Executive committee officers
ex-officio and the following editors:
G. B. Daniels, Enquirer, Oakland; F.
B. Mackinder, Star, St. Helena; S.
H. Olmsted, Journal, San Rafael; D.
J. Reese, Free Press, Ventura; H. G.
Tinsley, Review, Pomona; W. A.
Shepard, Herald, Auburn; Wallace
C. Brown, Review, Pacific Grove; L.
P. Hathaway, Citizen, Palo Alto;
J. B. Sanford, Dispatch-Democrat, Ukiah; E. V. Dewey, Journal, Hanford.

The San Diego Chamber of Commerce chartered a boat and took the party for a ride around the bay. At noon a lunch was served at Roseville Pavilion, and then we were taken in tallyhops to Point Loma Homestead,
the central home of the Universal Brotherhood and Theosophical Society, under the leadership of Mrs.
Katherine Tingley. The pupils of the Raja Yoga school had prepared a two-hour program for us and Mrs.
Tingley was present, and at the request of our president made an interesting talk. The exhibition given by the children was marvelous, and we of the press certainly went away with a better understanding of this remarkable woman's great work.

Our next stop was at Los Angeles,
the metropolis of the south, where our headquarters for two days were at the Hotel Hayward, an up-to-date fireproof building with splendid appointments. Mr. H. C. Fryman is proprietor and he is an accommodating host. While at Los Angeles we enjoyed a ride over the famous Balboa Route under the expert management of C. M. Pierce. Arriving at Redondo Beach, we were entertained at luncheon at the Redondo Hotel by the Redondo Chamber of Commerce. We were given an evening reception by the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, at which prominent newspaper men and citizens of Los Angeles welcomed us to their city.

The last day was delightfully spent at Pasadena. On the way a stop was made at the celebrated Cawston ostrich farm at South Pasadena. We were met just inside Pasadena by the chamber of commerce and given a two hours auto ride among the beautiful homes of the only Pasadena. After a visit to Throop University, we enjoyed a grand luncheon at the Hotel Maryland under the auspices of the Pasadena Chamber of Commerce, at which the mayor and prominent officials greeted our association.

Our ride from Los Angeles to Pasadena and return was over the Pacific Electric—a great system, well managed in every detail. The home trip from Los Angeles to San Francisco was made over the Southern Pacific, and we returned to our several homes having enjoyed and profited by our trip.

The Association also desires to return thanks to the American Type Founders Co., and to the Zellerbach
Paper Company for remembrances.

The Committee, if it be permitted, wishes on behalf of the Association
membership, to sincerely thank Mr.
Friend W. Richardson, our president, for the magnificent manner in which he handled the details of the trip. As an executive officer and excursion manager he has no equal;
we are willing to follow wherever he leads.

Respectfully submitted
W. A. SHEPARD,
Herald, Auburn;

FACTS ABOUT TAFT

BY A COLLEGE CLASSMATE.

The recent stampede for William Howard Taft as Republican candidate for President is without a parallel in the history of our country. The easiest explanation is to say that he is the choice of the man who is now recognized by the heads of other nations as the greatest ruler in the world. Every one feels that there must be good reasons back of Mr. Roosevelt's emphatic choice. What those reasons are is no mystery to any one who knows very much of Taft and what he has done.

The Taft family came to Mendon, Mass., from England in 1679 in the person of Robert Taft. William Howard was another ancestor who migrated from England. Magazine photographs have made us familiar with the sturdy features of his grandmother, Sylvia Howard, who with his grandfather Peter Rawson Taft removed a century or so ago from Mendon, Mass., to Townsend, Vermont. There the father, Alfonso Taft, was born in 1810. Thence Alfonso used to walk, to save stage fare to Amherst Academy and to Yale College, graduating in 1833. After teaching three years in High School and three in Yale he settled as lawyer at Cincinnati in 1840. He was Judge of the Superior Court in Cincinnati from 1865 to 1870; United States Secretary of War, 1875; Minister to Austria 1883-85; Minister to Russia 1885-86. He had five sons at Yale: Charles P., '64, Peter R., '67, William H., '78, Henry W., '80 and Horace D., '83.

William H. was born at Cincinnati, O., December 15, 1857, and prepared for college there at the Woodward High School. Even then he was class leader and had such a strong way of doing things that his father said "Mocierity won't do for Willie" and this became one of the family jokes. Entering Yale College at 16 he engaged heartily in everything that was manly and right and was gladly recognized as in many ways the greatest man in his class though in point of scholarship he cheerfully yielded the first place to the genial and gentle C. H. Keysey, now of New York. Besides having the Salutatory at graduation, Taft was class orator by the election of his class mates. In 1880 he took his diploma from a law school in Cincinnati and entered his father's office. Some of his time was spent in reporting Court proceedings for the Star-Times and the Commercial.

As a law reporter he won the confidence of his county Attorney and was his chief assistant. This was the beginning of a series of appointments to public service by which his sterling character have been increasingly recognized for 28 years. In January 1881 he was appointed Assistant Prosecuting Attorney of Hamilton County. In March 1882 he was appointed by President Arthur, Collector of International Revenue of the First District of Ohio. This enabled him to study the subject of Federal Taxation at close range. But it was not congenial work and he was glad to become the successor to his father in the practice of law, thus freeing the latter for diplomatic service in Austria. In January, 1885, he became Assistant County Solicitor for Hamilton County without giving up his general practice.

In March, 1887, he was appointed by Governor Foraker Judge of the Superior Court of Cincinnati, in which his father had presided 20 years before. To this office he was elected in April 1888, by a majority of more than 5000, this being the only time he ever was a candidate for office. In February 1890, he was appointed by President Harrison United States Solicitor General. Theodore Roosevelt was then a National Civil Service Commissioner and this was the beginning of their intimate acquaintance. Mr. Taft represented the Government in the Behring Sea case, in the case which decided the solidity of the McKinley tariff law and in the case in which Speaker Reed counted a quorum in the House of Representatives. On March 17, 1892, he was appointed United States Judge for the Sixth Circuit, covering Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky and Tennessee. This was when he was only 34, the youngest United States Judge that we have ever had. President Harrison who appointed him, afterward plead before him as a lawyer. Some of his decisions fairly appealed the Constitution of the United States to the crimes of organized labor and capital alike in such ways as it had never been applied before and gave him a national reputation.

In March, 1893, he became Senior Judge and presided over the Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit. In June 1896, he became Dean of a law school in Cincinnati and delivered the annual addresses before the University of Michigan in 1898 and the American Bar Association in 1893. In the latter he lays down the principles which have governed the actions of President Roosevelt in the last seven years, in regard to Capital and Labor. Mr. Roosevelt, President of the New York Police Board and had not uttered any opinion on the subject. There is no dispute between Mr. Taft and his Chief as to the discovery of these principles.

In 1893, his college honored him with the title of Doctor of Laws, the youngest man who ever received that title from Yale. In March 1900 came the event of his life. Up to that time his work had been mostly in the line of his chosen ambition. He had never dreamed of himself as a Foreign Missionary. But our Government was in the un-American position of compelling the Philippines to submit to its rule. Yet this was a small consideration compared with the inhumanity of giving them their freedom in their semi-barbarous condition. We were in a position to help them to a civilization which had been the work of 2000 years. It had taken 20 years to develop our system of education. We could now do up this system in a neat package with a red string around it.

and send it to them by the first mail. Very few believed it could be done. We were fortunate to have in President McKinley one of those few.

He saw that the basis of civilization must be law and intelligent self-government. He called to his aid one of the ablest lawyers of the country, Elihu Root, making him Secretary of War. But it was necessary to have a schoolmaster for the man, Taft rebelled. He said, "I can't be of any use. I didn't want you to take the Philippines. It was a mistake." McKinley answered, "Nor did I want to take the Philippines. There was nothing else to do. I had to. We must build a new nation out there. I want you to help us."

Mr. Root made a stirring appeal, pointing out the possibilities of good statesmanship in the islands. It was the struggle of Mr. Taft's life. But he surrendered. He had found his mission. Mr. McKinley said, "I am sending Taft to the Philippines because he is the broadest and most unselfishly brave man I know, and because he will carry the spirit of the Constitution of the United States in his very blood. He will get at the hearts as well as the minds of the Filipinos."

On the voyage he had leisure to study the instructions given him by Mr. McKinley and Mr. Root and to let the conception of his mission grow upon him. He won the hearts of the Filipinos, men, women and children. When the time was ripe he held Civil Government Institutes in all parts of the islands. He gave valuable instruction in the science of government. He allowed every Filipino to speak as long as he had anything to say, the subject always being something pertaining to self-government. At the end of twenty months he was summoned home to make his report. Six weeks were occupied in giving the testimony. He has since made many speeches on the subject. May 17, 1901, he sailed for Rome to confer with Pope Leo XIII in regard to the purchase of the lands of the Friars. In June and July he held conferences with a committee, at which a basis of government was reached.

Then follows another period of nearly seventeen months as Governor of the Philippines. Twice during this time he was offered by President Roosevelt the dream of his life—the office of Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. The second time he was actually appointed and the President insisted on his acceptance. In a pathetic cablegram of 277 words he recognizes the duty of the soldier to obey orders. But he makes a strong appeal against changing horses in the middle of the stream. "All right, old fellow, you can stay," was the President's reply. In December 1903 he was appointed United States Secretary of War. The work in the islands could now go on without him, his health in that hot climate demanded a change and as Secretary of War he could still render valuable assistance to the Philippine by whom he is glad to be called a Father.

The weight of his character, his ability to work, his infinite patience and cheerfulness, saved Cuba in the year of her anarchy. The Philippines; Cuba; the Panama Canal; The administration of the army; the Brownsville affair; the improvement of rivers and harbors; the development of Porto Rico; the policy of Hawaii; the limitation of the water power of Canada; the temporary administration of the State Department; this is a bare list of the mountains of labor which have been heaped upon his shoulders in the last four and a half years and which he has borne as cheerfully as if they were a well-fitting coat. A third time he was offered a seat on the bench of the Supreme Court, but he felt that to accept it would be to desert the Philippines.

The following is from a private letter written by Mr. Taft to a friend: "The chief consideration for my not going on the bench at this time is the critical situation in respect to the Philippines. If the tariff bill had passed the last Congress I should have gone. I dislike administrative business that has such a political side to it that a man cannot do anything of an important character without looking about to secure witnesses and evidence that he is not a thief and has not some corrupt motive in the transaction." The following extract from a speech at Yale, 1904, shows something of the self-denial it required for him to decline the President's offer:

"The courts are the backbone of our civilization. The Supreme Court of the United States is the whole backbone of the Government. It is the body to determine whether Congress is acting within its constitutional limitations; to determine whether the executive has exceeded his legal authority. It is the last and final tribunal. Its power rests not upon its marshals or its

Good Roads in the Fifth

A county officer had occasion to go over the roads in the Fifth Township in an automobile recently and came back declaring that they were the best kept of any in the county. He was surprised at the good condition of the roads. He supposed that owing to the smallness of that Township and the difficulty in keeping mountain roads in repair that he would experience some rough riding but on the contrary the automobile ran along as smooth as it did in the valley. This speaks volumes for Dr. D. E. Blackburn as a road builder. All the roads of the county are in splendid condition, in fact better than they have ever been before. The supervisors are doing wonders with the limited funds at their command in making good thoroughfares. A well known attorney of San Francisco was known attorney of San Francisco and declared that he had visited every county in the state and nowhere did he find better roads than in San Mateo county.

LOCALS IN A BRIEF FORM

The Board of Town Trustees met in caucus at the home of Robert Brown Thursday evening.

Mrs. C. L. McCracken is spending a few weeks with her friend, Mrs. F. W. Swanton, at Santa Cruz.

The young men of Woodside are to give another of their famous "hops" on June 6th. Come one, come all.

J. B. Samuel, president of the San Mateo Title and Insurance Company, departed for Los Angeles Thursday, to be gone a week.

Miss Aurora Peterson has resigned her position in the grammar school, and already there are a number of applications for the place.

Mrs. William Sickert wishes to thank the Masonic fraternity, the Odd Fellows and the many friends for their kindness and sympathy in her bereavement.

The party who removed the Universal dictionary from the Times-Gazette office is known, and unless he returns the property he will be punished to the full extent of the law.

One day last week Under Sheriff Frank Bartlett picked up a small sum of money on the street. The owner may have the same by calling on the officer and stating the amount that was lost.

Virgil Butts, a former high school student, was here from Santa Rosa the fore part of the week calling on his friends. Mr. Butts is now employed as a deputy in the Tax Collector's office at Sonoma county's capital.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Dossie entertained the graduating class of the high school at their beautiful home in Wellesley Park Tuesday evening. Instrumental and vocal music was rendered and the students sang high school songs, which were enjoyed by all.

Edward Payson Weston, the great apostle of walking, passed through this city at 5:30 Tuesday morning, a half-hour behind his schedule time. Mr. Weston is on his way to Los Angeles, where he is due to arrive at 11:50 a. m. Thursday. There were only a few people up to see him. He took breakfast at the Del Monte hotel.

Miss Florence Howard, who was a teacher in the high school last year, is here on a visit to the family of Prof. McCrea. She taught Latin and German in the Redding high school and is now spending her vacation. Mrs. Sarah Wentworth gave a party in her home Wednesday evening. It was an enjoyable affair.

The delinquent tax list that is published today in the South San Francisco Enterprise is much longer than usual. This is accounted for by the fact that the numerous purchasers of lots in the new subdivisions in the county have failed to leave their addresses with the Tax Collector, who would have notified them of their delinquencies.

All kinds of fruits and vegetables. Strawberries 50 cents per box, bananas 20 and 30 cents a dozen, tomatoes 25 for 10 cents, cucumbers three for 25 cents. Summer squash now in. Beans 10 cents per pound, three for 25 cents; new garlic 15 cents per pound, onions only 3 cents per pound, fine large new potatoes 3 cents per pound, asparagus three pounds for 25 cents. Lown's Market, A street. Phone, Black 373.

Local liquor dealers who intend to continue in business after the first of July are getting busy securing signatures to their petitions for license. Under the present liquor ordinance but five names of property owners were required. Ten signatures must be obtained, if the proposed new ordinance is adopted by the City Trustees, before an application can be acted on. Signers must be electors as well as real estate holders.

MRS. REBECCA J. MORSE - DIES OF PNEUMONIA

Was a Resident of San Mateo for Over Thirty Years

With the passing of Rebecca J. Morse last Friday, another of the county's best-known and esteemed pioneers has gone from our midst. Death occurred at the family home on Baldwin avenue, San Mateo, after a brief illness, from pneumonia. Surrounded by the surviving members of her family she passed peacefully away, after having attained the age of 80 years and 7 months. Mrs. Morse was the widow of the late Dr. L. D. Morse, who died in 1902 at almost the same age as his wife.

Mrs. Morse was born in Jordan, N. Y., and came to California with her husband and children in 1875, locating the same year in San Mateo, where she has resided continuously since. She was a devout member of the Episcopal church and devoted her life to her family and her home. Surviving her are her four children—C. M. Morse, Miss Mary E. Morse, Lucius D. Morse, and William H. Morse—all residents of San Mateo. The funeral was held Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock from St. Matthews Episcopal church and the interment was made in St. John's cemetery in the family plot where rests the body of her late husband.—San Mateo Leader, May 27th.

Ursuline Graduate Crowned

Miss Elise Casey, eldest daughter of Mr. and James T. Casey of Colma, was crowned a graduate at the commencement at Ursuline convent, Santa Rosa, last night. There was an elaborate program under the direction of Mother Superior Agatha and the Ursuline sisters. A number of visiting priests were present. Father Cassin, pastor of the Santa Rosa Catholic church crowned the graduate and the chorus sang the coronation ode.

more deer than are killed by the rifle. To explain: The money paid into the State treasury by licensed hunters created a fund which is being used as a reward money (twenty dollars a head being paid for mountain lions) to induce hunters to kill the animal that destroys deer.

Langley vs. Hughes

The trial of the case of Langley et al against William Hughes et al was heard in the Superior court before Judge Murphy, of Mono county last Monday. This was the second trial, the first one taking place on May 21st, 1901. Some sensational were sprung at the session. Tuesday William Wyman and his wife testified that they were approached by William Hughes shortly after the fire in 1900 and asked to have their 13 year old son commit perjury by manufacturing testimony in favor of the defendant. He was to say and he did so a first trial, that he set a rat nest on fire in the timber land of Mr. Hughes and it got beyond his control and spread and destroyed the Sampson Brothers mill. Mr. and Mrs. Wyman coached their son accordingly. For this they were offered $50 and 50 acres of land at Grubtown.

Then followed the testimony of Geo. C. Ross, one of the attorneys for the plaintiff that the defendant had endeavored to induce his to throw off his claim for a bribe of $500.

They met in Mr. Ross' office and there Mr. Hughes agreed to give $500 if the attorney would dismiss the case. Later the coin was placed with Dr. Ross and he deposited it with a check for the amount back to Mr. Hughes. The latter claims he wanted to compromise the case and not bribe the attorney. The case will be submitted in briefs.

Builders' Contracts

The following builder's contracts were filed in the recorder's office during the week:—

P. F. Ramm and S. W. Turner agree to build a one story frame dwelling in 60 days for A. W. Dow and Mrs. C. H. Dow on their property in Burlingame. The stipulated price of the contract is $2054.

A bulls head breakfast and barbecue will take place at Chappito, Portola Sunday, June 14th. The heads will be secured at Baden and will be cooked by an expert. All are invited to attend.

its control or a navy whose battleships it may summon, but its power and precedent rest upon the supremacy of the fundamental law which it is its duty to declare and preserve, and which it is the duty of every citizen to maintain at all hazards.

constables, not upon an army under arms. When he entered upon the duties of his present office, he is said to have possessed only $1500, and the question was pertinently asked, "Does not the nation owe something to that man?" But he is richer with that than he would be with fifteen millions which it comes to him to win the confidence of the entire nation.

Even before Mr. Roosevelt became President he wrote in a magazine article that Mr. Taft combined "the qualities which would make a first-class President of the United States with the qualities which would make a first-class Chief Justice of the United States." This judgment has stood the test of seven years. There are noble life-long Democrats in the class of Yale '78. One of these, a Missouri judge, had not seen Taft for many years. After calling on him at Washington he wrote in a letter to his college chum, the writer, "I am immensely pleased at the success of Taft. He is the biggest man I have ever seen."

Another of this noble coterie, an ex-congressman, said to the writer, "I have known McKimley for years. Taft would have been his successor. But Roosevelt will succeed himself and who knows what will happen by that time?" A good answer to this conundrum would have been, "Teddy." A man's character is not easily changed from his college classmates and the uniform esteem in which his man is held by the men of '78, regardless of political or religious creed, should be a valuable asset in any estimate of his worth. It should keep the campaign free from the personal abuse and the petty intrigues of even good men.

So much of Mr. Taft's work has had to do with law and government, with the protection of life and liberty and property interests, that we may fail to give him due credit as a conservator of morality and religion. It is his chief glory, in his view, that the government should take men thousands of miles from their homes and expose them to temptations which can be avoided. In the Philippines he observed that the Y.M.C.A. was the organization which could provide for all kinds of privileges for reading, writing, amusement, recreation, education, religion and whatever else is needed to keep them from degrading influences and give them positive help. So this agency was appealed to by the government to establish four by the Y.M.C.A. Clubs on the islands of the Philippines with ten secretaries. The beneficiary these institutions to the men employed in the construction of the canal is beyond computation. For 18 years Taft and Roosevelt have been shoulder to shoulder in the service of the Government. Roosevelt is the only President who has deliberately fitted himself for Civil Service as if it were a profession. Taft has more than any other man placed himself and his chosen profession at the nation. In all these years he has shared the burdens of the presidential office. He has learned to do its work as an apprentice learns a trade. The people know how he will do the work because they know how he is already doing it. They are more and more coming to believe in him as Daniel in judgment, as honest as Lincoln, as patriotic as the Father of his country. Who's the first and the biggest, the only best man The freest from guile and from graft. Ask the youngest descendant of Elihu Yale? He'll give you the answer, "Bill Taft."

R. C. MOODIE, Menlo Park, Cal.

VALEDICTORY.

Fellow Classmates, Ladies and Gentlemen: I perform this ceremony tonight with mingled feelings of pride, sorrow and joy. Pride, because the honor has been conferred upon me to loose the bonds which have held us together these four years; sorrow, because we now separate, having spent four of the happiest years of our lives together; joy, because we are well equipped to make our way in the world.

After tonight we will not have our course in life marked out and directed for us. We shall be thrown upon our own resources with no teacher to direct us but the stern teacher, Experience.

As we mingle in the fretful stir of the world, many obstacles may confront us, but fortunately, if we persevere, there are means by which we may overcome these obstacles. During these four years of study we have provided ourselves with moral and mental equipments to face the problems of life. Let us start out with gladness and rejoicing, and if we are led into a cold and unfeeling world, where the true is often outweighed by the seeming, where the weaker often goes to the wall, where the unrequited pines and starves, we can know that the greatest works are performed not by strength, but by perseverance, without which most of our successful men could never have accomplished for the world what has given them a worthy position in it. Whitney did not perfect his cotton-gin in a day, nor did Fulton build his steamboat in a year. Sir Isaac Newton, one of the most persevering men that ever lived, wrote his Chronology seventeen times before it was correct. Arkwright, amid the greatest of discouragements, devoted all his time to the spinning-jenny until it was completed. Persevere, then, like these men, and do not give up at the slightest discouragement, for, as Bulwer Lytton says, it is not talent that men lack, but will power, and those who fail are wishers—those who succeed are willers.—determined to persevere and accomplish the tasks set for you in spite of drawbacks of various kinds.

Everyone, as early in life as possible, should endeavor to ascertain the strongest faculty of his mind or body fitting him for some pursuit. If, after ascertaining the pursuit in life for which we are fitted, and after bending all our energies to bring it to perfection, we then strive to obtain worldly wealth, let us not sacrifice our honor in doing so. Let us not prove false or recreant to the lines of duty stamped upon our hearts. Let us strive that our loyalty to honor and duty shall be placed far beyond the pale of reproach.

'Tis true from now on we will find difficulties calling for the exercise of our best trained energies, problems that will tax our highest faculties, but we have been trained to climb the ascending ridges, and if we have heeded our training, our course will always continue to be upward in thought and action, and we will make our way to the commanding summits.

Channing once remarked, "I beheld young men crazed with a mania for money. I saw them refusing to cross the college threshold, neglecting conversation, despising friendship, that they might increase their goods." Yet, fellow classmates, we must remember that the earth's most gifted children have been content with small means, performing their greatest exploits amidst comparative poverty.

Since it is in this glorious land, renowned for its learning and achievement, that we have laid the foundation that is to make us one of the supporters of a country where art lifts up her heavenly features, where science stands revealed in all her charms, this land where merit is a passport to success, and intellect is the only aristocracy, let us, as we start out surrender unreservedly to this land, the loyalty of our hearts, the fire of our intellects, and the service of our arms. Let our loyalty to her and her laws and adherence to her constitution help to make our country endure, and we in turn will be amply protected by her enlightened and beneficent laws.

It is with feelings of sadness that at this Commencement we close these four years of happy school days. We have worked together and have formed friendships which mean more to us than words can express. May these bands of friendship never be severed.

Fellow classmates, in your journey through life, on which you are just about to start, may happiness and success attend you. Whether we meet again or not, let our lives be such that we may be true to ourselves, true to our country, and an honor to those who have conferred upon us the unbought and unpurchasable blessings of an education.

ENTERTAINMENT IN AID OF COLMA SUNDAY-SCHOOL

Operatic and Vaudeville Performance Next Saturday Evening

An operatic and vaudeville performance and exhibition will be given at Castle hall, Colma, next Saturday evening for the benefit of the Colma Protestant Sunday-school.

This Sunday-school organization—non-sectarian, Protestant in character—has just completed the construction of a model and picturesque chapel in Colma. The organization did not have sufficient money in its treasury to meet the entire cost of building, and this entertainment is given by the many friends of the Sunday-school to provide for the payment of the amount due on the building. The Protestants of Colma have long felt the want of a chapel, particularly for Sunday-school purposes, and now that want has been supplied by this new structure.

An attractive program has been prepared and many accomplished artists have volunteered their services. The young people of Burlingame Congregational church, who gave "The Peppery Pa," will repeat their successful presentation of that entertaining operetta, and a choice selection of songs and recitations will be given by accomplished amateurs.

The receipts will be contributed to the building fund of the new chapel.

The following program was rendered and every number was heartily applauded.

Chorus—"The Fairy Revel" (Sullivan) Girls' Glee Club. Salutory, Wilbur Harvey Dossie. Class History, John Edward Kronquist.

Class oration, Eugene Peter McAuliffe. Class Prophecy, George Washington Polson.

Vocal Solo, O. M. Carrington. Class Poem and Class Will Laureine Anderson.

Valedictory, Philip Benton Fox. Chorus, Boys' Glee Club.

(a) "Soldiers' Chorus" from Il Trovatore, (Verdi). (b) "Huntsman's Farewell," (Carlington).

Commencement Address, Hon. Jos. W. Wiley, Palo Alto. Chorus, Combined Glee Clubs.

(a) "March of Aida," (Verdi). (b) "A Fable," (Sullivan).

Presentation of diplomas by L. P. Behrens, President of the Board of High School Trustees.

Philip Fox's valedictory was well delivered and closely followed by the audience.

Mrs. Bullock's Will

Late yesterday Geo. C. Ross filed for probate the last will and testament of Mrs. Isabella Bullock, who died at Berkeley on May 16th. She bequeaths all her jewelry and lace to her two daughters, Natalie and Bella Brittain share and share alike. She leaves her wearing apparel to her sister, Anita Fallon and her niece, Geraldine Gibney. Kate Longinatti, an employee is bequeathed the sum of $500. She is a niece of Charles Imporsani of this city. To her mother she leaves her portrait and other articles. The her husband J. J. Bullock, she bequeaths the residence at Berkeley consisting of four acres and improvements and also the real property on the southeast corner of Fourth and Tehama sts. San Francisco to hold same during his life. At his death it is to go share and share alike to Natalie and Bella Brittain, Carmelita Brittain Kendall, a daughter, is intentionally omitted from the will. She appoints her husband executor to serve without bonds. The petition does not state the value of the estate except that it is over $10,000. However the estate is estimated to be worth $100,000.

Cutting Affray at Tannery

A stabbing affray took place at the Frank Tanning Company's plant Tuesday at noon. G. J. Liguori has the contract to pile the bark and had five Italians employed in doing the work. A dispute arose over wages between the men. It appears that one was working for $1.75 a day while the others received $2. The former was constantly abused by the latter and driven to desperation he pulled out a silletto, slashing and cutting his foes. He was assisted in the deadly work by his brother. Two of the men were badly cut about the head and shoulders and were taken to Dr. Ross' office for treatment. The two brothers escaped to Menlo Park and were afterward arrested. The five are now in the county jail.

Palo Alto vs. Hopkins

The civil suit of the Town of Palo Alto against Timothy Hopkins that was transferred to this county by the superior court of Santa Clara some time ago was up for trial before Judge Buck Thursday and it will be several days before it is concluded. The town put down a sidewalk and curbing along Katherine street and presented the bill to Mr. Hopkins. He contended that the street was never dedicated and consequently was private property. It adjoins his land. The town holds that the street having been used as a public highway for years became a public thoroughfare by said use. Geo. C. Ross Joseph Hutchinson and N. E. Malcom appear for the town and Charles and Schneider for Mr. Hopkins.

Divorce Mill Still Grinds.

The following divorce suits have been filed in the superior court:—

Anna Lorton has brought suit against her husband, Charles H. Lorton, for the annulment of their marriage. They were married at Mayfield on September 11, 1897. As a result of the union there are two children, James Leroy Lorton, aged 9 years and Charles Russell Lorton, aged 5 years. On July 17th, 1907, Lorton died willfully and without provocation, abandoning his family. Owing to illness she is unable to support herself or family and asks alimony in the sum of $25 a month. She also asks for the custody of their minor children.

Gertrude Doti asks for a divorce from her husband, Silvio Doti on the grounds of wilful neglect. The couple were married in San Francisco on November 2nd, 1901. They have life for his family for the past 15 months owing to his dissipation. He has been under the influence of intoxicating liquor for the past year. She has no means of support and asks the court for relief. She also asks for the custody of the child.

Emma Morgan prays for divorce from her husband, Walter D. Morgan, on the grounds of wilful neglect and cruelty. The pair were married March 14th, 1896, in St. Alfego, in the parish of Greenwich, in the county of London, England. There are two sons, Philip L. Morgan, aged 11 years and John C. Morgan, aged 9 years. The complaint alleges that on May 4 of this year Morgan struck her on the temple with his cane, first breaking the cane, then thereby disfiguring her face and producing an injury from which she may never recover. On that occasion he kicked in the front portion of her sewing machine. On November 1907 he left the family home and went to live with a daughter by a former marriage in San Francisco. In order to humiliate her he notified the butcher, baker and grocer not to supply the family with goods. She was only saved from starvation by her personal earnings. In July 1905 she was compelled to leave him on account of his shameful conduct with other women. About two years ago a reconciliation was brought about by his promising to lead a good life. However he shortly after quarreled and he applied vile names to her which brought her great mental anguish. She asks for the custody of the child and that he be restrained from selling the family home at Burlingame.
